"It made me Hands that Sor' I couldn't slape, an' if it was that harrd on me hands how harrd it must be on the durit! This is the way a good old Irish woman praises some washing-powder or other which she prefers to Pearline. As it was proven she had never tried Pearline, the compliment would appear to be in favor of Pearline.

Whoever heard of any one claiming that Pearline hurt the hands? But there's the trouble-Pearline is the onginal washing compound, its popularity has drawn out thousands of imitations—so popular that to many it indicates any powdered washing material. If you are using Pearline, you are satisfied, if you are dissatisfied, try Pearline It you are using something with which you are satisfied and it is not Pearline, try Pearline-you will won der you were satisfied before. Pearline is economical and absolutely harmless. Every grocer sells it, 415 JAMES PYLE, N. Y.

Ship Gen. Knox Burned to the Water's Edge,

this morning. The loss will reach $200,

The Gen. Knox arrived from Liverpoo on the 20th of July and tied up at Pier 19, where she received the balance of her cargo which her agents, Sutton & Co. are consigning to the companion firm of Sutton & Beebe in Sun Francisco. She was to sail about September 1s and for the past two weeks the stevedore bave been busy filling her huge hold with the utmost care, the men only working while daylight lasted Not a 7,15 last night, when the hatches were battened down and the men stopped work for the day.

At 3.15 this morning Capt. J. G. Libbey who, with his wife and three child-ren, first and second mates, steward and ship carpenter were sleeping on board awoke to smell smoke in his cabin Simplianeously the watchman on the pier saw smoke coming from the vessel s ventilators and yelled fire with all his might. The themen had a stream of water turned into the hold of the vesse before fifteen minutes had elapsed Where the fire was and to what extent it had spread no one knew at first, but knowing the nature of the cargo the their valuables. Three alarms were rung poured tons of water upon the blaze in the hold. It was ten o'clock before the

The report that Germany might side with England, giving positive moral apport to Chiuk, is not regarded with favor in Berl m. It is believed to be unfounded, in fact, as the German foreign office is following scrupulously a policy of absolute neutrality? There has been no indication as yet, moreover, that this policy would be changed.

Edward Crosby of Merrimac Killed by Robbers.

Struck Down While Responding to a Call for Aid.

Three Men Arrested on Sus picion.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Ang. 18. Merrimac contributes, today, the intest chapter to the record of crime in this section with a murder as a sequel to a burglary. The victim was Edward Crosby, a well-known farmer living on the very edge of Merrimac, just beyond Saunders Hill. His life was lost while responding to a call from his brother who lives just below him for aid, in defending his property and family against three masked men who had entered his bouse and threat-cased the lives of the lamates.

While on his way to the house he met the three men and was tackled by them. A struggle ensued, he was struck over the head but refused to yield until a bullet had pierced his body, and he had received his death wound. The men made their escape and are still at large.

Jacob Crosby is a farmer in prosperous circumstances, and occupies a roomy old house on the southerly side of the Merimac road, just beyond Saunders' hill, and hear what is known in the neighborhood, as Tucker's hill.

The nembers of his household include his wife, a boy of thirteen, three children fow years younger and a hibby not twelve months old, while in the "L'portion of the house sleeps George Saugent a farm hand.

Shortly after 11 o'clock has evening Mrs. Crosby heard some noise in the L section of the house, and at first thinking some of the children were up, paid little attention to it. The noise continued and looking out a near window in the main part of the house, she us in you'll have a dead baby before morning."

A shot was fired through the glass in the door and the certain soon after that, but Mr. Croaby escaped it. He kept a shot gun in the barn in the rest of the house, and seeing that the visitors meant business, decided to go for it. Taking his wife and baby with him he went to the barn, at the same time sending his hired man to one of the neighbors for help, and his oldest boy to another house on a similar errand. His wife continued past the barn and went to the house of her husbanis's brother, Edward, just above on the road and aroused him Croaby falled to find his gun in its usual place in the barn and started for a neighbor's whom he thought had a revolver, intending to capture the barglars in the house, which they entered in the meantime. His brother Edward responded quickly to the call and with clothes hustily donned and without a weapon of any kind, started for Jacob's house.

As he tarned the corner of the barn he

FORT SMITH, Ark., Aug. 19 The spontaneous combastion of 200 kegs of powder and 1,200 pounds of dynamite belonging to the Speer Hardware Combany occupied at 8 20 has avening giving Fort Smith a terrible jostle. The warehouse was situated about three-quarters of a mile from the city. The explosion blew the residence of Mrs. Cooke into the air, killing Mrs. Cooke and her babe and killed her daughter. The explosion also instantly wrecked 10 or 10 dwellings in the neighborhood broke plate glass in bundreds of business houses in the city, and loosened the plastoring from most of the dwellings within miles. A boating party consisting of A. W. Walters, Miss Kate Hurley were in the vicinity of the explosion. Parties are in search of them

A SEA OF FIRE.

Oil Tanks Explode and Commu nicate Fire to a Large Section.

BUFFALO, N Y, Aug 18 A freight train on the New York Gentral R R consisting of 63 cars, on which were oil tanks, broke in two this morning at Cheektowaga, about a rolle from the city line. Two parts of the train collided with great force and one of the oil cars exploded, the oil having been ignited from a brakeman's lantern. Other oil tars exploded to a roll ducession and from a brakeman's lantern Other oil curs caught fire in rapid succession and there was a series of tremendons explosions. One tank was blown fully 1000 feet and over a house, which caught fire and over a house, which caught fire and over a house, which caught fire and was destroyed.

Spontaneous Combustion of Giant | Thought That Congress Will Adjourn This Week.

Mr. Sherman Indulges in a Little Numerous Buildings Wrocked Senate Waiting for President's Action on Tariff Bill.

But Walt, Also.

Washington, Aug 19 There is good reason to bolieve that the week which opens to-morrow will see the close of the second session of the 53rd Congress The work of the Sonate is finished, the last of the appropriation bills being completed and the conference report adopted Friday. There is nothing for the Senate to do but clean up the ends of a very busy session. About the only thing that has kept the Senators bere is the tariff The general impression now is that the President will permit it to become a law as soon as the treasury officials are ready to carry it into effect That he does not intend to veto the bill is clear, for the law print is now being prepared at the public printing office.

After to-morrow it is likely that the Senate will meet for a short time daily and then adjourn, pending the reception of the tariff bill Until it is known just when to expect this measure from the President it is not likely that the joint resolution fixing the day for adjourn ment will be introduced. In the meantime there will be an effort, perhaps successful, to pass the House bill to repeal all laws authorizing the rebate of the international revenue tax on alcohol used in the arts will be necessity for the passage of that incasure. Mr Allison (Rep. 10wa) will be heard on the same point and on the while subject of this session's turiff leg islation.

There is Nothing much for the House to do apparently but want for the House to do apparently but want for the action of the President upon the tariff bill and then adjourn. The adoption of the Murphy resolution in the Scente on Saturday is taken as an expression of the determination of that body to do no more business, and the factlic chorts of the managers to get a quorum to vote on the sugar trust and sugar bounty resolution demonstrated the fact that, like the House the Scente is piac theally without a quorum.

Assumed that none of the bills yet in conference between the two houses need There is Nothing onforence between the two houses nement thereon Among this quasi in meas ires is one relating to the powers of com-missioners appended by territorial courts, and another relating to the pay-ment of state taxes against corporations in the hunds of receivers appointed by

The Committee on Rules has notified the chairmen of the com has notified the chairmen of the committees applying for a day on which to consider business reported from them that no more assignment of time for that purpose will be made. As long as the House remains in assion bills may be considered and passed by unanimous consent, but nothing that does not meet general approval stands any show of rathing through.

general approval stands any show of getting through Just before the House adjourned thursday an effort was made to gain consideration for the bill reported by the conference committee, agreed to that day by the Senate, prohibiting immigration of unarchists. Objections were made by several members and the probabilities now are that it must go over but if the next session.

Appropriate Criticisms of the Course of the Democrats. Senate

Senate

Washington, Aug 18 There was a very slack attendance of Senators to-day The resolution offered jesterday by Mr Hurrle (Dem., Ienn.) for the appointment of Mr White, of California, to dill the vacancy on the Finance Committee was laid before the Senate Mr Manderson (Rep., Neb.) stated that there would be no objection, he thought to the consideration of the resolution this morning. He wished to say for himself and some others that the stand taken yesterday meant no measure of disrespect to the Senator from California Recognizing the ability and fitness of that Senator, there had been no personal feeling whatever in the matter But it had been thought desirable that that important vacancy should not be filled without full consideration. Mr Hill (Dem., New York) concurred in the expression of the hope, that the resolution might be adopted this morning without opposition. The resolution was then agreed to without a division. The resolution was then agreed to without a division of the hope, that the resolution be laid aside temporarily as he wished to make a suggestion to the Sunator from New York declaring there should be not forther legislation on thange in revenue laws at this session, was then laid before the Senate. Mr Gorman (Dem., Maryland) asked that the resolution be laid aside temporarily as he wished to make a suggestion to the Sunator from New York. The resolution was so laid, and Mr Corman moved over to the senate the resolution of fered by Mr Gray (Dem.) help the resolution of fered by Mr Gray (Dem.) help with an amendment providing a revenue daty on all sugars without any differential dut on resolution; sugar fire, and reenacting the provisions of the McKinley at for a sugar bounty. Other blunders in in the bill as passed were alludid to by Mr Sherman, who also spoke of the queer circumstances leading up to a reduction of the duty on crockery, said that the new crockery schedule would probably result in suspending operations in that business until the mistake was corrected

Mr Sherman also criticised the course of the President in interfering in the details of the tariff bill as being, unconstitutional and at variance with all precedents. He said that under the circumstances he would certainly tote in favor of an ad vatorom duty on sugar. If the Republican party had remained in power no revenue from sugar would have been needed but dow it was apparent that such revenuel would be necessary. As to the other bills for free coal, free iron ore and-free bartled where he would certainly vote against them. He therefore agreed most heartily to the resolution offered by the Senater. The sooner Congress adjourned the better.

By CAPTAIN CHARLES KING. [Copyright, 1894, by the J. B. Lippincott Co.] CHAPTER IX.

When Captain Armitage left the cottage that night, he did not go at lone to his own room. Brief as was the conversation he had enjoyed with Miss Ronwick, it was all that fate vonch-safed him for that date at least. The cuttier native entire party went to tea together at the hotel, but immediately thereafter the colonel carried Armitage away, and for colone carried armitage away, and for two long hours they were closeted over some letters that had some from Sibley, and when the conference broke up and the wondering ladies saw the two men some forth it was late—almost 10 o'dlook—and the captain did not yen-ture beyond the threshold of the author. has been attending striptly to his duty and is evidently confounded that I did not press the matter of his going to town as he did the day I forbade it. ture beyond the threshold of the sitting room. He bowed and bade them a some room. He bowed and nade them a some-what coremonious good night. His eyes rested—hisgared—on Miss Renwich's uplifted face, and it was the picture he took with him into the stillness of the nmer night

The colonel accompanied him to the steps and rested his hand upon the broad gray shoulder. "God only knows how I have needed you, Armitage. This trouble has nearly crushed me, and it seems as though I were utterly alone. I had the haunting fear that it was only weakness on my part and my love for my wife that made me stand out against Chester's propositions He can only see guilt and con viction in every new phase of the case, and though you see how he tries to spare me his letters give no hope of any other conclusion."

Armitage pondered a moment, before he answered, then he slowly spoke:

"Chester has lived a lonely and an unhappy life. His first experience after graduation was that wretched affair of which you have told me. Of course I knew much of the particulars before, but not all. I respect Chester as a soldier and a gentleman, and I like him and trust him as a friend; but. Colonel other conclusion.

town as he did the day I forbade it.
Mr. Hoyt's being too late to see him personally gave me andicient grounds on which to excuse it, but he seems to understand that something is impending and is looking nervous and harassed.
He has not renewed his request for leave of absence to run down to Sablon I told him carely it was out of the question."
The colonal took a few strides up and down the room. It had come them. The good hame of those he loved was already good name of those he loved was already besumrobed by gurrison gossip, and he knew that nothing but herola measures could ever silence scandal. Impulse and the innate sense of "fight" urged him to go at once to the scene, leaving his wife and her fair daughter here unde why and her har unagner here under his sister's roof, but Armitage and common sense said no. He had placed his burden on those broad gray shoulders, and though ill content to wait he felt that he was bound. Stowing away the letters, too nervous to sleep, too worried to falk he stole from the ortares, and to talk, he stole from the cottage, and with hands clasped behind his back, with low bowed head, he strolled forth into the broad vista of mooulit road

There were bright lights still burning at the hotel, and gay voices came float ing through the summer air. The piano, too, was frumming a waltz in the par-lor, and two or three couples were throwing embracing, slowly twitling shadows on the windows. Over in the bar and billiard rooms the click of the balls and the refreshing rattle of crack-ed ice told anguestively of the occupa ed teld suggestively of the occupa-tion of the inmates. Keeping on beyond these distracting sounds, he slowly-ellmised a long gradual ascent to the "bench," or plateau above the wooded point on which were grouped the glus-tening white buildings of the pretty sum-mer resort, and having reached the mer resort, and having reached the crest turned silently to gaze at the beauty of the scene—at the broad, flaw less bosom of a summer lake all sheen and silver from the unclouded moon Far to the southeast it wound among the bold and rock ribbed bluffs rising from the forest growth at their base to shorn and rounded summits.

Miles away to the southward twin lied the lights of one busy little town. Others gleaned and sparkled over to ward the northern shore, close under the pole star, while directly opposite frowned a massive wall of palisaded rook that threw, deep and heavy and far from shore, its long reflection in the mirror of water. There was not a breath of air shirting in the heaven. mirror of water There was not a breath of air starring in the heavens, not a ripple on the face of the waters beteath, save where, close under the bold headland down on the other side, the signal lights, white and crimson and green, creeping slowly along in the shadow, prevailed one of the realest senses, Armitage I have lehned on you so many years that I missed you sorely when this trial came. If you had been there, things might not have taken this shape. He looks upon Chester—and it's one thing Chester husn't forgiven in him—as a meddling old granny. You remember the time he so spoke of him last year, but he holds you in respect or is afraid of you, which in a man of his caliber is about the same thing. It may not be too late for you to act. Then, when he is disposed of once and for all. shadows, revealed one of the packets plowing her steady way to the great marts below Nearer at hand, just shaving the long strip of sandy, wooded point that jutted far out into the lake, a broad raft of timber, pushed by a hard working, black funneled stern wheeler, working, black funneled stern wheeler, was slowly forging its way to the out let of the lake, its shadowy edge sprin kied here and there with little, sparks of lurid red—the pilot lights that gave warning of its slow and silent coming Far down along the southern shore, under that black bluff line, close to the silver water edge, a glowing meteor seemed whirling through the night, and the low, distant rumble told of the At lantic express thundering on its jour

the low, distant rumble told of the At lantic express thundering on its jour ney. Here, along with him on the tevel plateau, were other, roomy cottages, some dark, some shill sending forth a guiding ray, while long lines of white-washed fence gleamed ghestly in the moonlight and were finally lost in the shadow of the great bluff that abruptly shut in the entire point and plateau and shut out all further sight of lake or land in that direction. Far beneath he could hear the soft plash upon the sandy my doing; that I took it to toass Alice, put the photograph in the drawer of my desk and hid the frame behind har soft a pillow. Presently the distant crack of a whip and the low rumble of wheels were heard, the omnibus coming back from the station with passengers from the night train. He was in no mood to see any one. He turned away and walked northward along the edge of the bonch, toward the deep shadow of the great shoulder of the bluff, and presently he came to a long flight of worden starrs, leading from the plateau down to the hotel, and here he stopped and sented

home yet. He wanted to be by himself, to think and brood over his trouble
He saw the omnibus go round the bend and roll up to the hotel doorway with its load of pleasure seekers and heard the joyous welcome with which some of their number were received by waiting even Armitage was confounded by one army of facts and circumstances that he had so paintfully and slowly communicated to him. The colonel went drearly hack to the room in which they had had their long conforence. His wife and isinglet to the room in which they had had their long conforence. His wife and isinglet to the room and urged him to come and join them—they wanted to sale about Captain Armitage, with whom it was sivilent they were much impressed—but he answered that he had some letters to put away, and he must attend first to that.
